William Rourke

In 1957 as a successor to Joseph Rourke, William "Bill" Rourke became general manager of operations. During William's tenure the company expanded as a major high production Aluminum Casting Foundry, installing automated equipment and buildings to meet growing customer demands.

Modern Aluminum Castings Co., Inc. serves a wide range of industries - from Fortune 500 corporations to small and midsize OEMs. Our customer base includes but is not limited to these end-market segments:

- Appliance
- Automotive
- Construction
- Electrical lighting
- HVAC
- Industrial machinery
- Medical devices
- Sporting goods

William Rourke retired from full-time employment in 2004 with son, Michael Rourke, and Son-In-Law, Jefferey Farmer, becoming over all managers of operations in partnership.

- ▶ Mike Rourke assumes the role of Sales and Administration Manager working with customers and suppliers at the point of quotation.
- ▶ Jeff Farmer fulfills the role of Manufacturing and Engineering Manager coordinating procurement and quality control.

During the 1990's Modern Aluminum updated our 35,000 square foot Indiana facility with a fully automated production system designed to meet your most demanding casting requirements. Offering complete alloy sand casting services, from design to delivery.

► Modern Aluminum Castings Co., Inc. is capable of fulfilling your complete finishing needs, including heat treatments, coatings, machining, and surface treatments such as vibratory finishes and shot blasting.

▶ In 1998, Modern Aluminum began global sourcing focusing on the procurement of a broad range of Manufacturing processes.

Commandments for Continuous Improvement

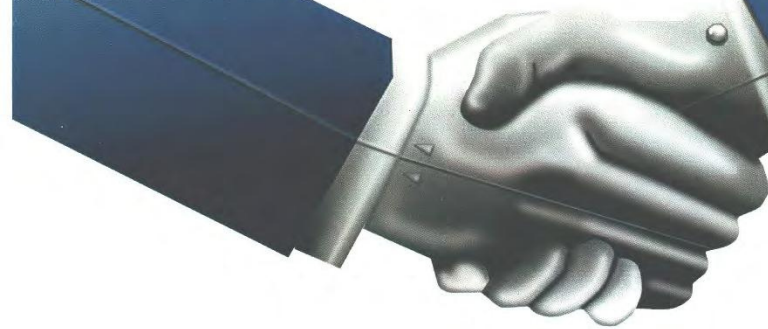

1. Problems create opportunities.
2. Ask why five times.
3. Seek ideas from everyone.
4. Think of solutions that make it possible.
5. Re-evaluate fixed ideas.
6. Excuses are not needed.
7. Choose a simple solution, not the perfect one.
8. Correct mistakes immediately.
9. Use your craftiness, not your cash.
10. Continuous improvement is endless.

“Continuous improvement is better than delayed perfection.” -Mark Twain
